With a few minor additions, the Greenbelt City Council on Monday, June 6 adopted the budget of $8.0 million for fiscal 1989 as presented by the city manager in April and set the property tax rate at $1.21 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation. The budget provides for an increase in expenditures in the General Fund of 8.4 percent over last year; revenues are estimated to increase by 13.9 percent to meet the expenditure level for a balanced budget. down. He asked for a change in

The increased tax dollars that will come from reassessments and new properties added to the tax rolls will more than pay for all increases in the operating budget. Council agreed with the manager to put five cents of the tax rate toward meeting the gap between planned capital improvement projects and the funds available to pay for those projects. This five cent tax hike was cut to four cents when the estimate of tax revenues from new property was increased by $34,000 or almost one cent on the tax rate during the last days of the budget process.

The increase in the operating budget can be characterized as bringing the pay scale of the city's professional employees in line with competing governmental agencies through upward reclassification. Also included are a combined addition of three full time and one part time employees, a four percent across-the-board cost of living increase for classified employees, and a $4,500 salary increase for the city manager.

Pool fees have already been raised this year and trash collection fees will be increased to $126 annually starting January 1, 1989 (18 months after the last

Some downward adjustments were made this year in contributions to the replacement fund. City Manager James K. Giese is confident that the size of the fund has been more than adequate in recent years, barring some disaster.

A number of budget changes will be required next year when the new police building opens, adding new operating and maintenance expenditures, and when the present municipal building receives some renovation to better accommodate the other departments housed there. Giese's overall objective this year was to hold down expenditures in view of greater increases coming in the next several years.

FOP Disappointed

John Lann, president of Greenbelt's Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 32, and a couple of citizens spoke on various points concerning the budget. Council, however, made no changes in the budget on Monday night beyond those contemplated at the final budget worksession.

While complimenting the city council, manager and staff for the time and effort they had given to the FOP this year in hearing and assessing the FOP's requests for new or added benefits for its members, Lann complained that the system for decision making had let them sociation had been doing the city a favor but told Goldberg the city could bill each homeowner separatey.

Gladys Spellman, Leader in County For Two Decades, Is Dead at 70

by Sandra Barnes
Greenbelt loved Gladys Noon Spellman and, by all accounts, Gladys Spellman loved Greenbelt. The former Congresswoman who represented Prince Georges County in the House of Representatives for six years, died Sunday, June 19, following a heart attack suffered in 1980 from which she never regained consciousness. She was 70 years old.

Spellman had many friends and supporters in Greenbelt. In 1980, she carried the city with an 82% majority. While serving on the Prince Georges County Commission (which preceded the county council) in the mid 1960s, she worked against the higher density zoning being proposed in the Master Plan. "She gave us entre to the Board of County Commissioners," commented Elaine Skolnik of the News Review, "by setting up meetings to allow the city council and community leaders to give Greenbelt's position." She was the only commissioner to vote against the rezoning of the Golden Triangle from single family residential to com-

When Eleanor Roosevelt High School opened in 1977, the need to provide a safe passage across the Baltimore-Washington Parkway from the core city to the school became apparent. Congresswoman Spellman orchestrated the components-city, county, state and federal officialsto build the overpass from Gardenway and Greenbriar to the high school. In June, 1983, the completed structure and its approaches were dedicated and named the Gladys Noon Spellman Trail and Overpass.

Her career spanned nearly two decades in Prince Georges County. As a housewife and young mother in the 1950s she was active in the PTA, serving as president. She won election to the Board of County Commissioners in 1962, 1966 and 1971 when the county government was reorganized under a charter and the County Council was formed.

During these turbulent years in county government, she was a force in the reform movement that created the county charter. She prevailed on her colleagues to create the Human Relations Commission, the county Women's Commission, the merit system for county employees and an expanded county library sys-

Throughout the fifth congressional district which she represented, she attended many neighborhood meetings listening to the complaints of local citizens. Not an 'Either'/'Or' Issue To the Editor:

The many letters in the News Review of June 16, show me how responsible, concerned citizensthose for saving our green belt and those for an indoor pool-can divide a community instead of joining together and working for the best interests of the community.

The issue shouldn't be an either or issue. The bond issue many years ago expected that the money would be enough to take care of the growing needs of the community. It was thought that the money would buy a new police facility, an indoor pool, and green land. However, at present it is clear that not enough money was asked for in the bond issue to take care of all of Greenbelt's needs. Then the issue becomes how to raise more money. Is another bond issue in order or should we put our money where we say our hearts (are), and be willing to pay more taxes? It is not politic to say we need to increase our taxes, but as concerned and responsible citizens who live in a cooperative community we need to face the facts and ask that the council be responsive to the needs of every citizen in the community-young and old. Green land is good for everybody, and so is an indoor pool good for everybody.

So-let us give a vote of confidence to our council members and town manager-and let them get on with the task of making available to the community both an indoor pool and green

In an exciting season finale Greenbelt edged Langley Park 2 - 1. Langley Park dominated the field for brief periods but Greenbelt soon took control and

by Marie Hite

maintained control of the game by doing what they do so well: playing as a team. They held their positions. They passed, and they defended. Kris Todd and Bailey stalled Langley Park's bulldozer offense, forcing the game to be played on Greenbelt terms.

The game was close. Adam Wheatley scored first for the Greenbelt team with an assist from T. J. Trimble. Greenbelt worked to protect their lead. In what was probably her best game season, Stephanie King was a key player for Greenbelt with a number of decisive passes that set up her team's offense. T.J. along with halfbacks Jason Kinworthy and Jack Inman held the midfield together, both backing up the defense and driving the offense on to the goal. Led by Adam Wheatley, players Harry Flores, Mike O'Brien, Crystal Kerfoot and Mary Renzi did the rest. Greenbelt ruled the day, but not without a battle. What the all-boy Langley Park team lacked in polish they made up for in an aggressiveness that earned them some shots on goal. Greenbelt goalie Eric Jorgensen played an intensive game and was up to the challenge. Langley Park scored only once, tying the game 1 - 1.

Greenbelt went to work. Although both teams exchanged possession of the ball, Greenbelt steadily made its way towards the goal. Halfbacks Jenny and Sara Meetre squelched Langley Park's attempts to cut off the Greenbelt offense and Langley Park was unable to contain the Greenbelt team. When the break came, Greenbelt seized it, and Adam Wheatley, assisted by Mike O'Brien, went in for the winning goal with just forty seconds left in the game. Greenbelt ends the Spring Season with an impressive record of six wins, two losses.

In a recent game against New Carrollton, Greenbelt won 5 - 0. Goals were scored by Kris Todd (with two goals), Mary Renzi, Scott Lubey, and T.J. Trimble.

This coach would like to thank the team parents for their support, encouragement and suggestions. Their cheers inspired all

Too Plentiful Gypsy Moths Alarm Northway Residents

The Woodland Hills Community Association held its annual picnic and meeting on Sunday, June 12. Many of the 50 families living in the neighborhood attended the event, which took place on Parcel A, the community owned woods between Northway and Woodland Way.

Gypsy Moths

A highlight of the meeting was a presentation on the gypsy moth infestation in the area. Many residents expressed alarm regarding the number of caterpillars spotted and obvious oak tree defoliation.

Mark Davis, the Association's president, reported on conversa-tions with city and state officials. Bill Phelan, the city's horticul-turist, told him that Greenbelt had no plans to spray for gypsy moths as some nearby communities have done, including College Park. Instead, the city will rely on the state to spray the area. Phelan told Davis that the state's most recent count near Greenbelt Lake indicated 150 gypsy moth egg masses per acre. (One egg mass may contain as many as 500 caterpillars; a level of 1,000 egg masses per acre is likely to result in nearly total oak defoliation.)

A representative of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, Lee Venables, told Davis that the state now will spray a minimum 25-acre area if a sample indicates 500 gypsy moth egg masses per acre. The threshold for action had been 250 egg masses per acres until this year, but was increased when available resources could not keep up with demand. The state reportedly sprays with BT, a biological agent which poses little danger to people, pets or plants but may harm other moth and butterfly larvae, and Dimalin, a hormone that prevents molting, but which should not be used near water because of its toxicity.

Mark Burchick, a Ranger for the National Park Service who is in charge of gypsy moth control for over 3,000 acres of parkland, made a presentation which was highly critical of state, county, and local experts to control gypsy moths, which he characterized as two years behind where they should be. Burchick, the son of Woodland Hills residents Mike and Myrna Burchick, said that 250 egg masses per acre is a point where significant damage can be done to oaks, particularly those that are in private yards rather than in a forest. He recommended that an aerial survey be conducted by the city in August to identify areas of greatest damage, and that BT spraying program be-gin next Spring. Otherwise, he feared that defoliation might be irreversible and the whole character of vegetation in the city could be changed.

As a result of the discussion, Woodland Hills will be writing to city and state officials expressing concern and urging prompt action. Robert Tichener is the Head of the Gypsy Moth Program for the Maryland Department of Agriculture. The address is 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis Maryland 21401. The city will also be urged to provide information and assistance to residents interested in protecting their trees. Takoma Park, for example, has a program where residents can purchase materials needed to protect trees at the city's cost, which is lower than at commercial garden centers.

City Priorities

A lengthy discussion was held about whether Woodland Hills should correspond further with the city regarding the use of funds generated by the bond referendum. Association member Leonie Penney made a presentation on the city budget, property taxes, and information which she felt had not been adequately disseminated to citizens. Joe Wilkinson provided additional background.

Many members expressed concern about the length of time being taken by the city to reach a decision and take some kind of definitive action. Betty Maffay, formerly a member of the Greenbelt City Council, pointed out that some of the issues being discussed today had been around since 1971. The membership ended up directing that a letter be written urging the council to expedite its decision-making process, and recommending that acquisition of parkland be the first priority.

Other Community Concerns

The Association will be corresponding with the city on a number of other matters. Complaints were aired about difficulties with special trash pick-ups, as well as continued traffic problems along Northway. An inquiry will also be made about greater city support for community crime watch programs.

At the business session, Helen Geller and Joe Wilkinson were reelected for three-year terms to the association's board of directors. Betty Timer did her usual excellent job planning and coordinating the picnic.

Council Takes Another Look At Cinema 'n' Draft House

by Diane Oberg

On June 9 the Greenbelt City Council met with representatives of the Greenbelt Cinema Inc. (GCI) and First Washington Development Group. At its April 18 meeting council had voted to oppose a liquor license sought by GCI for a proposed Cinema and Drafthouse to be located in the Greenbelt (Utopia) Theater. First Washington was considering forming a joint venture with George Christados, owner of most of the commercial buildings in the center. to renovate the center. First Washington told council at that time, and reiterated at the June 9 meeting, that the leasing of the theater to GCI was essential in order to provide a sufficient income base for renovations. GCI said that a liquor license is essential to its operation.

One of the major questions addressed at the worksession, was whether the companies and the city were still interested in their original proposal. This issue was complicated by the fact that a law taking effect July 1 bars the issuance of liquor licenses to movie theaters.

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld said that he felt that the legislation could possibly be amended. He said the legislation was intended to prevent the sale of alcohol at refreshment stands in traditional theaters, rather than at a restaurant type operation such as the proposed drafthouse.

Raymond LaPlaca, representing GCI and First Washington agreed with this assessment, but cautioned that both clients had sought other investment opportunities after council voted against the license. He said that the business agreement between Christacos and First Washington had expired.

Peter Carney, President of GCI, said that he had some potential interest in operating at the center, but that he was no longer as enthusiastic as he was at first. He said he did not want to operate with a "potential lynch mob" in his backyard. Bill Wolfe, of First Washington, said that his firm was still interested in the proposal. Christacos told council that, since the center is small and not on a main road, it is essential for him to have a tenant with a special attraction to customers. He told council not to kid themselves that the center can be repaired without a tenant to pay rent for the

Parking Problem

One major concern held by First Washington, the city, GHI and the Roosevelt Center Association (RCA) is parking. Wolfe said that the county Park and Planning staff, which currently has responsibility for enforcing parking standards for the center, could not tell him whether or not the drafthouse would meet those standards. He said that the county staff told him they hoped the city would form a parking district for the center so they wouldn't have to deal with it any longer.

City Manager James K. Giese said that the staff had proposed a parking district but was unable to create one that would satisfy council's concerns. In addition, he had been advised that the city would have better enforcement under county parking waivers than with a parking district. However, he said that a district could still be established if council agrees.

Wolfe was concerned that the city would require him to get parking approval for each tenant. introducing delays that make it impossible for him to rent space. Councilmember Thomas X. White said that there should be no problem from the city's standpoint. with retail uses of a type traditional for neighborhood centers. He said that problems were most likely to result from office uses. Wolfe agreed to supply a list of the type of tenants he would seek for the center.

One concern cited by several councilmembers as a reason for their earlier opposition was the lack of specific information about the proposed renovations to the center and about the operation of the drafthouse.

Under the plan described by Wolfe, the center would be restored, as nearly as possible, to its original appearance. The Cinema and Drafthouse has agreed to provide an Art Deco sign for their operation. Five hundred thousand dollars have been budgeted for renovations to the center including interior improvements to ceilings, walls and floors, roof repairs, upgrading of the mechanical equipment and extensive repairs to the brickwork.

Wolfe said that the center already has many of the needed community amenities with High's the cleaners, hairdresser and food shop. He said that he would like to get a bakery in the center if possible, but that there probably were enough banks in Greenbelt

There was some disagreement about the effect of the renovations on the current tenants. Wolfe said that some current tenants would probably be replaced with tenants that will keep clean, neat facilities and attract business. However, Christacos said that he did not think there would be any changes in tenants. He said that the current tenants had been in the center for a long time and that he was not planning any changes. LaPlaca cautioned that some tenants might choose to leave since rents would increase as the center was renovated.

City to Get Details

Wolfe agreed to provide, within 60 days, a sketch of the renovated center, a list of uses, and general plans for the renovations. LaPlaca asked council to let them know, up front, if anyone opposed the drafthouse concept per se. No one took the opportunity to do so, although Councilmember Edward Putens cautioned him that the community, as well as the council must have an opportunity to sneak to the subject.

Steve Wright, Assistant Manager of GHI and Treasurer of R-A, said that both GHI and R-CA were also concerned about security. He said there are already problems with loiterers in the Candy Cane City area, and that the two groups were concerned this might worsen with the introduction of alcohol service in the center.

However. although neither group voted on the question, Wright said that a consensus existed in both organizations, unanimous in RCA and a majority of the board at GHI, in favor of the proposal. Since many of the homes surrounding the city are GHI homes, Wright said Carney need not worry about a lynch

Community Access

Councilmember Antoinette M. Bram felt that the drafthouse had some image problems in the community that needed addressing. She suggested that they could allow the Greenbelt Arts Center, formerly housed in the theater, to present the Nutcracker annually. She said this has been one of their most successful events, and occurs during a slow season for movies.

Carney agreed, noting that this had been provided for in the formal letter he had written to the Arts Center prior to the original proposal. He said he was willing to allow community access to the theater as long as it did not threaten his economic viability. White suggested that access to the theater would enhance the city's recreation program in the arts, and said he foresaw the city reimbursing Carney for his specific expenses, such as electricity.

Councilmember Joseph Isaacs said that he did not oppose the Cinema and Drafthouse concept but was concerned about introducing alcohol service into the center. He said that both the council and the companies wanted a center they can be proud of. He agreed that in order to accomplish this, a successful tenant was needed in the theater.

Weidenfeld said that he would be willing to consider either the drafthouse or other possible alternatives, once he could review more specific details of the planned renovation to the center.

Wolfe requested that while his people are preparing the information for council, the city investigate whether the city could obtain reduced cost financing, as suggested by White, either through the issuance of bonds or by obtaining low-interest loans from the state. He also requested assistance in determining what

by Mary Moien

Six months had passed since the first residents moved into the new town. More pioneers followed them. As they entered their first spring in Greenbelt, many other firsts were still occurring. This article documents some of those events - Spring 1938. Most of the happenings were reported in local papers such as the Washington Star, Washington Times, and Washington Herald, and not in the national papers that had followed the earlier Greenbelt occasions.

At the beginning, the health association included about one-third of the town's residents. All of the clinic's hours were in the afternoon and evening. The fees for belonging to the association ranged from $2 to $5 per month for a husband, wife and two children. The clinic was set up to diagnose and treat illness, but not to serve as a hospital.

At the same time, members of Greenbelt the Community Church were 'interviewing' ministers by inviting them to visit the town and preach at a service. Under the cooperative spirit, the church members were to vote on the minister of their choice. After five ministers visited the church, the Reverend Robert Kincheloe was voted the first pastor.

Arbor day was celebrated then as now. A tree was planted near Greenbelt High School (now Greenbelt Middle School) to mark the first Arbor Day in the

Parkway Naming

Many Greenbelters endorsed the naming of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway in honor of Gladys Spellman. The repaving of the deteriorated Parkway has been called her most important political achievement, bringing together many diverse federal and state agencies, marshalling millions federal dollars to accomplish the job.

Albert Herling in a statement before the Subcommittee on Public Lands and National Parks, declared that "The people of our district love her and she earned that love because we feel she loved us. She cared about us and her care and love was not pro forma. She was deeply concerned for each and every one of her constituents as human beings and not simply as potential voters—as important as that is to every elected offi-

As a politician, the Washington Post called Spellman, "charming, cunning and unshakable." Those who ran against her called her an astute politician who came across as everyone's grandmother." As a human being, many remember her as warm and caring. Elaine Skolnik remembers that "She sat with me for three days after Al (her former husband) died."
Spellman's sister, Dorothy Noon Lupo commented "We like to think of her as the Parkway suggests she was-busy, vibrant, ever moving."
Though "her long ordeal is over," Hoyer stated, "she will be missed." Gladys Spellman will be remembered not only for the tremendous accomplishments during her career but also for being a compassionate public and private figure.

She is survived by her husband Reuben of Laurel; sons Stephen, of Chevy Chase, and Richard, of Riverdale; and a daughter Dana Spellman O'Neill of Columbia.

Spellman is to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

Contract Awarded for Part Of Metro's Greenbelt Line

The Metro Board recently awarded a $9.4 million contract for construction of 1800 linear feet of aerial trackbed for the Green Line just south of the future West Hyattsville Station passing over Northwest Branch and Chillum Rd. The contract will go to Lane Construction Corp., Meriden Ct., and will take approximately 24 months to com-

The Green Line is under construction from Gallery Place north to U Street and from just east of the Fort Totten Station in the Disttrict of Columbia to Prince Georges Plaza. Bid openings for construction of the College Park and Greenbelt Stations and the commuter rail station adjacent to the Greenbelt Station are scheduled for late summer, and construction will begin before the end of the year.

The Green Line is scheduled to open between Fort Totten and Greenbelt in late 1993.

CITY NOTES

The results of a radon test conducted at the municipal building indicate that it is in the safe range. EPA has set a level of 4.0 pCi/L for action. The municipal building basement had a reading of 0.8 nCi/L.

On June 8 and 9, 7,000 pounds of surplus food (cheese, butter, dry milk, honey, rice, cornmeal and flour) were distributed from the Municipal Building. Of the 185 families receiving this food, 124 were Greenbelt residents; the remainder were from Beltsville, College Park, Riverdale and Lanham. Greenbelt volunteers, primarily senior citizens, handled the entire distribution of the surplus

The general crew removed and renlaced sidewalks at Lakeside and Boxwood.

The special details crew painted curbs and parking spaces in various locations.

The parks crew continues to maintain athletic fields and cut grass. Heavy irrigation continued on flower beds and ornamental nlants.

The auto vehicle maintenance shop installed the radio and performed other preparatory work on the new Greenbelt Connection bus which is now in service.

The refuse crew recently had to double up on newspaper collection because one refuse truck was returned to the dealer on a recall. This truck is now back in service. Due to the high heat it was necessary to put extra people on the trucks.

Buddy Attick Park has had extremely heavy use. The pick up of trash in the parks, which is usually handled one half day both days on Monday and Friday, has been taking an entire day. One crew member is assigned in the parks on a continuing basis.

Greenbelt Grab Bag

Do illustrators ever look at the works they are illustrating? Here is a paperback book, the front of which depicts a well endowed scantily clad blonde, amorously ensconced in the arms of a cleanshaven sailor. Read the book, and you may be surprised to find out that the heroine is a demure brunette, timorously in love with a bearded red-headed Magazines appear to employ similarly oblivious illustrators. In this month's Reader's Digest, an article tells the story of a very elderly man applying for a drivers license. A great point is made of his exceedingly advanced age. The story is illustrated with a picture of his driver's license. His date of birth is given as 1937. Wow! Fifty-one years old!

A few months ago the Ladies' Home Journal ran a story about Princess Diana's "secret life." No deep, dark secrets were actually revealed, but I did note that "she always carries clutch purses never shoulder bags." This exciting statement was directly opposite a picture of the glamourous Di with - you guessed it - a shoulder bag slung over one slim shoulder.

Another occasion where illustrations can fool you is when you're shopping for food. Dig the wonderful pictures on the packages! How come the cakes I bake never look like the illustrations? Where are the luscious chunks of meat depicted on the outside of the frozen dinner? C'mon, get real!

Actually I wouldn't mind being an illustrator. I always did have a passion for fantasy.

Shannon Easton, who just finished the 6th grade at Center School, has been selected to compete in the state finals of Maryland's Favorite Pre-Teen competition. The event will be held on July 2 and is open to girls ages 8 through 12. Her sponsors for the pageant include the Greenbriar Condominium Association, the Annapolis Volunteer Fire Department, K-Company Majorettes and her family. She is the daughter of David and Coral Palmerton. Good luck, Shannon.

Congratulations to Nancy Femrite who was named to the Dean's List for the Spring of 1988 at the University of Colorado. Nancy graduated in May with a degree in psychology. Future plans include law school.

Diane Bodner of Empire Place graduated from the University of Maryland May 24 with a degree in chemical engineering. Diane was the recipient of an award from the American Institute of Chemists, which is given to honor the single senior in the Dept. of Chemistry, Chemical Engineering or Biochemistry at each college campus in Maryland, DC, and northern Virginia, who has gained an outstanding scholastic achievement, ability and service to the advancement of the chemical profession. Diane has accepted a position with Exxon Refinery in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. After a trip to Europe during the month of July, Diane will begin her new career in Baton Rouge in August. She is the daughtter of Mary Jane and the late Ray Bodner.

Other college news includes word from James Madison University that two Greenbelters made the Dean's List this spring. Mary-Frances Heaney of Olivewood Court and Daniel Sutherland of Lakeside Drive were among those who maintained a grade point average of 3.75 or higher while carrying a course load of at least 14 hours. Daniel received his Bachelor of Fine Arst at this year's graduation ceremonies. Congratulations for a job well done to one and all!

Summer Quest, a public library program that aims to keep school children ages 6-12 reading and entertained during non-school months, starts at the Greenbelt library on June 23 at 2 p.m. and will be held every Thursday until August 4.

Through booktalks, reading aloud programs, games and special ctivities Summer Quest promotes the idea that reading is fun.

Children who participate in the program earn stickers fo reading any books they choose. They also receive suggested reading lists. Participants get a Summer Quest passport book in which to keep their stickers, as well as a record of their reading.

Certificates will be given to children who read 10 or more books, and Wild World amusement park is offering a limited number of free admission tickets to those who get certificates.

WRC-TV weather forecaster Bob Ryan, Smokey the Bear, Woodsy the Owl, Michael the Magician and Gordy the Clown are among the special guests who will be presenting fun and learning activities for the children.

NCSL Soccer

The '76 NCSL team once again "did Greenbelt proud" when they took second place in a 5-state tournament in Roanoke, Virginia over Memorial Day weekend. The team was placed in the "Premier" division with 11 other '76 teams representing Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

The first match was against a Winston-Salem team, dreaded because they were 2nd place winners in the N.C. State Championships. Greenbelt's determined defense led by Peter Timer and Jamie Despres, with the tireless efforts of Shawn Wilson, held them scoreless for the first 20 minutes of the game. strong effort displayed by Greenbelt was, unfortunately, not enough against this skillful and well organized team. The final score was 1-3, the Greenbelt goal being scored on a counterattack by striker Etim Edim, assisted by midfielder Miguel Pereira.

The second game, played against Chesterfield, Virginia, chalked up a 2-1 win for Greenbelt. This time the Greenbelt team showed its better skills and offensive power, dominating the game. The close final score does not reflect what happened on the field. Both goals were scored by Etim, the first assisted by striker Raphael Mingo in another fast counterattack, the second deflecting into the goal on a cross-shot by Miguel.

The third and final game was to determine who would take second place honors. Greenbelt met Stafford, Virginia for this very exciting match. Against a very strong team (an NCSL team), Greenbelt played an excellent game deserving to win, which they did by a 1-0 score.

In the first half, Greenbelt was under some pressure but again the strong defensive efforts of such players as Dylan Powell,, Jason Ziegler and Raphael Mingo, well supported by the midfield, kept Stafford scoreless. In the only good chance Stafford had to score, goalies Jason Harbin made a spectacular save. The winning goal, a precision shot by Miguel into the upper left corner of the net, assisted by Corey Lee, gave Greenbelt this most deserved victory. Special men-tion also goes to Khris Chowbay, JoJo Grillo, Gregg Repole, Dan Dancis and Kevin Raymond.

Throughout the tournament, the team displayed its ability to compete with the most skilled of players and were repeatedly asked "Where is Greenbelt?", which they proudly aswered!

The Greenbelt NCSL team has had a very good spring season, finishing with a 6-5-1 record. It is looking forward to an even stronger fall season. Many thanks to sponsors, Springhill Lake, Three Brothers Pizza, Greenbelt Hilton Hotel and Capital Office Park for their continued support.

Beltway Has Logo Signs

A Capital Beltway logo sign, designed to ease confusion surrounding the interstate route designation of the highway, was recently unveiled by Maryland and Virginia transportation officials.

The signs, three-foot squares with a silhouette of the Nation's Capitol surrounded by a circle and the words "Capital Belt-way," are located beyond each interchange on-ramp in both Maryland and Virginia. A smaller sign, designated inner loop or outer loop, has been placed underneath the logo sign.

"Continual requests from citizens unfamiliar with the Capital Beltway area led us into devel-oping this program," said Maryland State Highway Administrator Hal Kassoff. Requests have been coming in ever since the eastern portion of the route was re-designated I-95 seven years ago, according to Kassoff. The remainder of the Beltwa designated I-495.

Additional guide signs consisting of the logo only are placed on each route directly leading onto the Beltway in Maryland and Virginia. Installation for all signs has been completed.

The signs are a part of an assembly that will include the direction the motorist is travelling, the route designation, the Capital Beltway logo sign, and the inner/outer loop sign.

Beginning in early July and until completion in October, the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission will be conducting a Water System Modernization Project in Greenbelt. The project is designed to improve customer service and fire protection. Highlights from this project will air on the Greenbelt Municipal Ac-Channel B-10 Monday through Thursday, June 27 through 30 at 3 and 7 p.m.

The work, to be performed by a contractor under WSSC's supervision, will involve the cleaning and lining of existing water mains to restore their carrying capacity by eliminating accumulated corrosion in the pipes and coating their interior surface with a thin mortar lining to protect against future corrosion. The procedure, already used with success in other areas, involves the operations of a powerized cutting tool to remove corrosion and of other equipment to apply the lining. Once completed, this process restores the pipeline to "better than new" condition.

This cleaning/lining is really a form of reconstruction to bring the mains up to modern standards. The existing pipelines were built decades ago, using thenstandard, unlined cast iron pipe. The process to be used this year will completely ream the existing pipe and provide it with the corrosion-controlling liner, which is standard feature of today's new ductile iron water mains in this

The work will take place at the following locations: Ridge Road from Eastway to Crescent Road; Eastway; Crescent Road from Greenhill Road to Ridge Road; Centerway; Gardenway from Centerway to Ridge Road; Southway from Centerway to 10 Court Southway; Westway from Crescent Road to Ridge Road; Lakecrest Drive; and Hillside Road.

Though the cleaning and lining method of reconstruction requires some isolated excavations for access to the pipes, it eliminates the extensive and highly disrupexcavation work which would occur if the mains were dug up and replaced. This work will cause some temporary inconvenience to traffic and to some individual customers. Efforts will be made to coordinate project activities to minimize problems. Where mains are being cleaned/ relined, existing connections from the pipeline to customer units will be disconnected from the main and reconnected to temporary water service lines so that customer water service will be maintained while the work is in progress. The temporary pipelines will be placed on top of the ground.

This project is being handleld as a general WSSC system improvement, so property owners who abut the modernization project will not be subjected to any special assessments or charges.

The WSSC Project Engineer for this project is Anne McNulty. Anyone encountering problems while work is in progress should contact McNulty at 495-9386. For any emergency condition requiring attention at night, on holidays, or on weekends, WSSC's 24-hour Maintenance Emergency Number is 699-4555.

Letters will be hand delivered to every affected customer in the next few days. One letter will contain information similar to this article. The other will contain information regarding water flow testing to be conducted before and after the modernization project is completed.

Watch Channel B-10 for information on the project's progress. Thursday, June 23, 1988

STRATEGIC PLANNING GOALS AND OBJECTIVES

MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1988 - 8 P.M.

COUNCIL ROOM, MUNICIPAL BUILDING, 25 CRESCENT ROAD

The City Council has scheduled a public hearing on the STRATEGIC PLANNING GOALS AND OBJECTIVES as developed by the city's Strategic Planning Subcommittees. These Goals and Objectives are the result of an effort to better plan for Greenbelt's future by identifying areas expected to be the leading issues in the years

The effort began in late 1986 when the City Council identified the issue areas to be addressed in this process. In early 1987, City Council, members of city advisory boards, city department heads and support staff participated in an all-day session and discussed the issue areas and drafted goals to address these issues. Strategic Planning Subcommittees were established for each of the issue areas, and the subcommittees subsequently refined the goal statements and drafted objectives, which were then reviewed by the city's advisory boards.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive comments from the general public as to the Goals and Objectives listed in the attachment to this notice before proceeding further in the process with the drafting of actions steps to achieve these goals.

For further information, please contact Michael P. McLaughlin at 474-8000.

Greenbelt East Is Tops in Assessed Value of Residential Property-Just

by Mavis Fletcher

The June 2 meeting of the Greenbelt East Advisory Committee was remarkable for what was missing: no developer made a presentation at the meeting. The committee reviewed the status of previous recommendations made to its parent boards and discussed contacts with some other local organizations.

GEAC looked at a detailed landscape and site plan for Commerce Center 3, the Midland Companies' planned office building on the east side of Hanover Parkway. No vote was taken since the committee had already recommended support of the plan to the association boards. In general the site plan seemed to meet with members' approval although some reservations were expressed about erosion control measures on the steep slope at the rear of the site.

Tax Comparisons

Robert Zugby reported that the city staff had responded to GEAC's request for comparative data on the assessed valuation of property in the three parts of the city. The figures provided are based on assessments of residential property; valuations for commercial property will be furnished later, Zugby said. According to the report, residential property West Greenbelt in (Springhill Lake) is valued at Greenbelt East at slightly more than $64 million, and in central Greenbelt at almost $64 million.

Zugby quoted from the paper prepared by Assistant City Manager Michael P. McLaughlin, saying that the figures were arrived at by selecting three or four representative units in each subdivision, averaging the assessed values of the homes and multiplying by the number of housing units in each subdivivision. Some members of GEAC raised questions about the method used and expressed a wish to see data based on actual county assessment totals.

McLaughlin's memo that there are 2,899 housing units in Springhill Lake, 3,164 in central Greenbelt, and 2,391 in Greenbelt East. In the discussion, GEAC members noted that a substantial number of housing units have been added in their part of the city since the 1987/88 fiscal year county assessment data on which the study was based, and that many more are planned. The members also expressed a desire to see comparisons of the assessed values of commercial property in the three parts of the city.

GEAC Contacts Expand

Zugby reported on recent contacts he had had with representatives of other groups both inside and outside the city. He said he had had conversations with representatives of Kings-almost $28 million, property inwood, Dresden Green, and New Carrollton. He said the discussions centered on concerns raised by the proposed Master Plan and on efforts to keep development densities down., particulary a-long Good Luck Road.

Zugby recommended that contacts with civic associations be maintained on an informal basis since GEAC often shares in efforts to lower development density. He noted, however, that GE-AC's constituency pays taxes to the city of Greenbelt and some commercial development helps pay taxes without demanding as many city services as residen-

Zugby also reported that Margaret Hogensen, at that time president of Greenbelt Homes, Inc. had requested an opportunity to meet with GEAC and explore areas of common interest. Zugby pointed out that most of GEAC's parent organizations (as homeowners condominium boards) have, like GHI, a legal and fiduciary responsibility to their members. He said that their interests may, in some cases, be more like GHI's than those of civic as sociations which may have a membership made of only a small percentage of eligible homeown-GEAC members present appeared to be interested in such an exchange with GHI

The next meeting of GEAC will be on July 7 at 7:30 p.m. at the Greenbriar Community build-
